

GEO 225: Maps and Map Interpretation

This course is a study of the various types of maps used, such as aerial/satellite photography, topographical, city and county utility usage, etc. Emphasis will be placed on developing computer generated GIS type maps.

Credits: 3

Transfer Code: Code C

Prerequisites:

Must have computer experience

Program: Geography

Semester Offered:

Fall